

Work out

by German-is-easy - Friday, September 11, 2015

<https://yourdailygerman.com/german-exercise-2/>

Here's where you can find exercises and work out to get the perfect beach body... I mean beach German. There's not much here yet but it'll slowly grow :). I have different ideas for different areas of German and I'll try them out in the coming months to see how you like it. But you can also help me:

If you have ideas for a cool exercise let me know in the comments.

But now... Viel Spaß. And enjoy your Muskelkater :)

Listening comprehension

I'm reading you a little tale, once slow and once normal, and you can read along. Or just listen. I do voices, too. At least I try :)

- "Der Hase" (no slow version yet)
- "Das Pfannkuchenbacken"
- "Der Hering"
- "Gehört ist nicht gesehen"
- "Das Weihnachtsgeschenk"

Sentence structure

This work out trains your sentence building muscles. I give you a bunch of short sentences and you have to combine them into one long chunk. You train using connecting words as well as sentence structure. We discuss different versions in detail in the comments.

- Sentence Structure 1 - "How the exercise works"
- Sentence structure 2 - "Verb position after und"
- Sentence Structure - "nachdem, danach, bevor, vorher ..."

- ... more coming soon

Work Sheets

Worksheets... ugh. I always hated them. But maybe I have a work sheet system that you hate a little less. The idea is that you DON'T write on the sheet. The solution is right next to the question. You just have to cover it with a piece of paper or your hand. And then you can do the exercise the way you please... write down full sentences, read it out from the page or just do it in your head.

They're not meant to be done just once. Use them again and again until you know the examples. That way you'll build up patterns and automatize stuff. Everybody learns differently so maybe it's not what you need. But maybe it's just that :)

Oh... each sheet is a pdf.

- "zu" or "um zu" (post with the exercise in it)
- German Spoken Past - 1 (pick the right helper and the right ge-form)
- ... more coming soon...